Rise of Dark Fury (or the Huntress)

by Frostbite711

Category: How to Train Your Dragon
Genre: Adventure, Family
Language: English
Characters: Astrid, Hiccup, OC, Toothless
Pairings: Astrid/Hiccup
Status: In-Progress
Published: 2014-12-01 06:57:07
Updated: 2015-03-16 03:16:21
Packaged: 2016-04-27 06:11:55
Rating: T
Chapters: 8
Words: 6,449
Publisher: www.fanfiction.net
Summary: When Hiccup receives a letter from the mysterious, Dark Fury, he goes to meet with her, taking his mother with to help. What will he do when he finds out that Dark Fury can talk to dragon's, and even more surprising, she watches over an entire society of Night Furies? And what if Dark Fury, is actually his long lost sister, who supposedly died several years ago?

1. A Letter to the Chief

This is my third Fanfic in progress. Hope you enjoy!

* * *

>[Prologue]

Darius lifted a fist up in the air and let out a shout of delight. There was nothing like flying with your dragon, feeling the wind in your hair.

He may not understand dragons as well as Hiccup or Valka, But he still loved flying.

He bent forward and patted his green Deadly Nadder's neck.

All of a sudden, his hair was whipped into his face. He looked around him. Stupid! You had to go flying at night!

Then he saw a flash of steel before he felt his body get shoved into his dragon, who no longer could fly thanks to the net that held its wings.

He felt gravity pull them down, and the slammed into the ground.

"Ouch," he said, rubbing his head, or at least trying to. Then he became aware of someone standing over him.

A cloaked figure with a mask that was half white, and half black watched him. On the left shoulder of the cloak, he caught a glimpse of a white Night Fury emblem.

The figure put a black boot on Darius' dragon, pushing lightly on its head. "Why are you here?" The figure demanded. Darius thought fast. The voice could be a woman, or a man, he was unsure. But he suspected it was the first.

"I was just flying. I didn't know anyone was here."

The figure stared at him for a few seconds, turning when they heard a strange growling/hissing noise. "I seeâ€¦My friend here tells me you speak the truth. But I guess I cannot just let you go off easily, even though you are handsome, for a Viking."

Yep, defiantly a woman.

"I'll send you back to where ever you came from, but firstâ€¦" The figure stepped back into the shadows, only to reappear a bit latter carrying a scroll with a ribbon on it. The same white Night Fury emblem stared at Darius.

"Take this to your chief, have him read it." And with that, the figure waved her hand. Tons of black-cloaked figures descended upon Darius and his dragon, pulling the netting off. One of them held a cross bow and shouted, "Leave!"

Darius got his dragon into the air and flew into the sky. He looked back to see the strange cloaked woman watching him. Then she turned and walked away, the shadows swallowing her, hiding her from his sight.

2. Meeting at Dragon Island

Okay,I'm going to update in hopes of getting reviews.

Note: I'd like thank those of you who are followers of my other stories.

* * *

>HICCUP

Hiccup sat near the fire, trying to figure out a fight with out causing more damage than had already been done. He sighed and looked up when his wife, Astrid, brought over some food.

"Thanks." he said.

"What's that you got there?" she asked him.

"Just a little arguement that broke out a few days ago." Astrid nodded.

"Let me help."

"I don't know if you can." he replied, allowing her to look at it.

"Hmm..."

Just then the door to their house swung open and Darius stood at the door, panting. "Darius! What's going on?" asked Hiccup, getting out of his chair.

Darius shook his head, holding out a scroll with a white Night Fury emblem on it. The dragon was in a defensive position, facing toward whom ever was looking at it head on. Curious, Hiccup slipped off the ribbon, then unrolled the letter.

Â« 00 Â»

Dear Cheiften,

If you're reading this, then know that you are not the only group of Dragon Riders out there. I've taken the time to write you, because one of your people has crossed into our territory. Now, I don't want to deckare war, so if you desire peace as much as I do, you WILL meet me at the Dragon Island at sundown on the day after you recieve this letter.

Come unarmed, and only bring one of your people with you, one who is better with peace then war. I'll await your arrival.

From,

Dark Fury

Â« 00 Â»

Hiccup was silent for a bit, then turned to Astrid.

She nodded. "Take your mother, she'll be able to help better than I will."

Hiccup smiled and kissed Astrid. "Thanks for understanding."

Then he got up from his chair, and exited the house. He went outside and his Night Fury, Toothless, looked at him with his big, cute eyes. "Come on, bud. Looks like we're going for a little flight."

Toothless stood up and trotted over to Hiccul, then licked him. "Toothless!" The dragon made a strange laughing sound in his throat.

Then he followed Hiccup as they went to find Valka and her dragon, Cloud Jumper.

* * *

>What's going to happen at the meeting?

Sorry, you're going to have to wait for the next chapter. :(

And don't forget to review! Bye for now! :)

3. I have a Proposition

Hope you enjoy this chapter! Now you'll finally learn about the mysterious Dark Fury.

* * *

>TERRA

Dark Fury tapped her boot impatiently into the round rocks beneath her feet.

She glanced over at Moon Shadow when she snorted.

Stop being so impatient. They'll come.

"I know. But _when _is the question." The white Night Fury blew out a breath of smoke. Her scales were covered in mud to hide the white glow. Dark Fury turned to look at the horizon, watching the sun set.

The Moon Shadow lightly tapped her tail tip on the rock, they were here.

Dark Fury turned to them, her cloak hiding her features, while her mask hid her face. "Finally."

She noticed that the man rode a Night Fury with a bunch of metal and wires stretching go a red tail. It wasn't a normal Night Fury tail.

"Um, hi. My name is Hiccup, and this is Valka." the man took of his helmet to reveal shaggy brown hair and forest green eyes.

She turned toward them. "Ok...As you probably already know, one of your people was caught trespassing on our territory. Normally, I don't take kindly to that, but this time, I'll make an exception. Because you ride dragons, and have a Night Fury. So I'm willing to make a proposition."

"What?"

"You come with me to my home for a while."

* * *

>Interesting... well I hope you enjoyed that!

See you next chapter!

4. Rare Night Fury

Hope you like this chapter!

* * *

>HICCUP

Hiccup's eyes widened. "Why do you want us to come with you?"

"I don't want her, I want you to come. I think you'll find out home...Interesting."

"_Our _home?"

The Dark Fury shook the his or her head. "Sorry, where are my manners."

Then Dark Fury made a bunch of clicking noises. Then he heard a low growl, and a blur of brown leaped over his head. He blinked, then saw a brown dragon next to Dark Fury. The dragon looked at him and made a hissing sound.

"I know Moon Shadow, I'll try to settle this soon."

Toothless growled, the black part of his eyes shrinking.

Dark Fury looked at him, then made a growling noise back. Toothless sat up, his head tilted to the right.

"Now, Hiccup, I don't want to stand here all day arguing with you. Please come with me, or I'll have to declare war, and trust me, I don't want that. I'm guessing that you don't want that either."

Hiccup agreed, then glanced at Valka. She was focused on the dragon.

"May I see your dragon?" She asked Dark Fury.

Dark Fury glanced at Valka, "If Moon Shadow says that it's okay. What do you think?" She asked the dragon. The dragon turned its head and scratched a wings, clumps of brown fell from the dragon's body.

Eventually the dragon rolled over, more brown fell off. When the dragon got back on its feet, the body gleamed white.

"Your dragon is white?"

Dark Fury laughed. "She's not my dragon, she's my protector, and best friend. But yes, she is white. Interesting isn't it. She's a rare type of Night Fury, one born every hundred years or so."

"Wow..." Hiccup watched as the white dragon came tentatively toward him, sniffing. Then she turned to Valka, circling around her and resting her tail lightly on Valka's shoulder.

"She will let you examine her." said Dark Fury.

Valka bent down and Moon Shadow watched, bright blue eyes watching carefully. After a bit, Valka had finished and then touched Moon Shadow in the center of her forehead. A strip of scales down her back glowed green, and Valka stepped back. "What's this?"

Dark Fury chuckled, bending over. "She's showing her alpha genes. Her specific race tends to have command or at least more command over dragons, Night Furies especially."

"Really?" Hiccup asked.

Dark Fury nodded, but then became more business like, making a chirping noise that made Moon Shadow bound over to her.

"So, do you agree to my terms? Or will we have to go to war. There are worse enemies out in our world."

Hiccup thought for a moment, glancing at his mother who nodded. He sighed.

"I will come with you. But first..." he turned to Valka. "Tell Astrid and the others where I've gone; don't let them follow me. You're in charge for now."

"Hiccup-"

"No arguing, please do this for me." She dropped her head, but she hopped onto Cloud Jumper and they flew off.

Dark Fury watched then said, "Come." Then hopped onto Moon Shadow, taking flight. Hiccup went to Toothless and then they left the island behind...

* * *

>This was a longer chapter. AND, it revealed more about Dark Fury and Moon Shadow.
**

What will happen next? Truthfully, I don't know.

Please Review!

Thank You! :)

5. Hiccup rider of a Night Fury

Sorry it took so long to update. Here's the next chapter!

>

* * *

>Terra

I sat on the back of Moon Shadow, my eyes closed. I didn't need them open to know where we were going. I trusted Moon Shadow with my life, it was because of her I was even alive.

I opened my eyes and looked back at Hiccup. "We're almost there!"

"Why are you yelling?"

I smiled, and then closed my eyes again as Moon Shadow dived, the wind ruffled through my hood and caused a few strands of hair to whip into my face. I grabbed my hood to keep it from falling off my head.

Then, darkness. I opened my eyes when light flitted across my vision, I knew we had just entered the cave. I sat up and looked back at Hiccup, his eyes were narrowed as he tried to see and Toothless let out little roars.

Luckily, Moon Shadow didn't need to. Then I felt her slow down and she let out a sharp chirp, telling Toothless to slow down.

Then she flapped her wings as she lowered herself gracefully onto the rocky floor. I heard Toothless flapping behind.

I turned around to look. Hiccup stumbled off Toothless and was wondering. I put an arm on his shoulder. He flinched.

I laughed. "It's okay, just me. Here," I said, guiding him down the hall, toward light. I fortunately had grown accustomed to the darkness here, even a few of the others here still had trouble.

We entered the main cave and I heard shouts of joy. "She's back!" I winced. Then my people ran up to me, some with weapons. Everyone had weapons, it was a precaution we took very carefully.

Then I saw them stiffen. "Who's that?" one of them asked.

I laughed. "Relax. This is Hiccup, rider of a Night Fury named Toothless."

One gasped. "But, how?"

"You'll have to ask to him." I said. "But first, we need to welcome him, and let him explore. Not with out a guard though."

"Uh, I think I can speak for myself."

I whirled to face him. "You don't speak here among my people! Not until you have earned our respect."

* * *

>Ah, interesting place huh. More will come next chapter.
**

Don't forget to review!

6. Rituals and Xein

Yes, I know it took long. I'm having lots of writers block. Especially with Frozen Souls: hint, It's All My Fault.

* * *

>ASTRID

I blinked when the news sank in. Hiccup was being led to who knows where by some strange woman in a cloak.

"Why?"

Valka shook her head. "I don't know. But I bet your friend, Fishlegs, would like to know about her dragon."

I nodded. "Then go tell him."

Valka smiled at me and put a hand on my shoulder. "Don't worry Astrid. I'm sure he'll come back." Then she left.

I leaned my head back into the chair and stared at the stars through the window.

* * *

>HICCUP

I walked carefully down sloped ground, following Dark Fury. She turrned to me and I felt the eyes of many people on me. Then she turned to the right. I knew there was a casum on my left, but it was to dark, even with the torches.

"So...what is this place." Dark Fury whirrled around.

"My home." Then we went through another tunnel. Coming out in a space that was space much brighter then the last part.

"We were just in the nesting grounds, now is human living area, or at least the town." She gestured around and I followed with my eyes. What I saw was amazing! Some of the building were carved from stone, and the rest where wood. Toothless came up behind me and butted me with his head. I patted him.

Dark Fury then pointed to a dome in the center of the room. Chains where strung along the top.

"See that? That is where young dragons and humans are bonded. They go to the nesting grounds, when a young dragon comes to them, they are brought here. If they don't bobd corectly, they restart with new partners."

"You have a ritual here?" I asked.

"Yes. Each dragon is paired with a human who is most like them, and visa versa."

"Wow, we don't have anything like this back on Berk."

"Really? Then again, there's only one Night Fury there."

Just before I could ask her what she meant, I heard the unmistakable screach of a Night Fury. Then a black blur rushed overhead. I ducked. Then I heard laughter.

"Hey Huntress!" shouted a voice. Dark Fury and I turned.

"Xein!" Dark Fury shouted, running toward me. I moved aside and saw her run to a man with white hair and green eyes.

She gave him a hug and stepped back, holding his hands. "You're back! And with...guests." He said, looking at Hiccup.

She crossed her arms. "I know. Don't go all alpha male on him. I brought him here because he is the cheiftan og that one who crossed into our territory a few days ago."

"Ah him. The Natter rider." She nodded.

"Well, come see me after your done." Then he walked past me. "Don't even think about it." he hissed.

I was utterly confused. But decided not to say anything. Dark Fury walked up to me. "Don't let him bother you. He always gets that way when we have new people."

I nodded. Then looked at her. "Huntress?"

"Yes, one of the many names I go bye." Then she walked off again. I looked at Toothless, then followed. Moon Shadow leaped over us and trotted after her friend.

* * *

>Cliff hanger! Yeah I knkw, you must hate me.

I don't care! So, I like Xein. A little over protective, but he and Terra make a cute cupple!

Please review!

7. The Dragon Song

It's been a really long time since I last worked on this. I've been writing Danny Phantom stories so my stories have been almost forgotten. I'll try to finish one of my stories, but no certainty.

* * *

>TERRA

I finished showing Hiccup around and we waited in the town's center for one of my messengers. A girl in a white dress, black hair, and brown eyes ran up. "We got your guest's house ready Chief."

I smiled at the girl. "Thank you. Lead the way." Luckily she was smart enough to not call me by my real name, most of my people used my nicknames around strangers.

She nodded before spinning around and racing up the rocky ground, bare feet running across stones like they weren't there.

I waved my hand for Hiccup to follow and we raced after the girl.

She stopped outside a rocky building not far from mine. It had been previously owned, but the owner had died in a dragon attack.

Hiccup looked at me before entering, Toothless followed him with a soft RAWR. While he did that, I walked up the path to my house and took off my hood, reveling my long black hair that cascaded around my shoulders. Then I pulled off my black and white mask and unloaded most of my weapons except a bow and a quiver of arrows and a dagger hidden on my ankle.

Moon Shadow entered and butted me with her head.

Why are you taking that off when Hiccup is so near?

I glared at her and lightly tapped her forehead. _He has to see the real me sometime. Besides, I'll put my stuff on before he comes in._

I spoke too soon.

I heard footsteps on the cave floor outside and turned to see Hiccup standing in the doorway. His eyes were wide as he stared at me.

* * *

>HICCUP

As we had followed the girl to the house that I would be staying in, I noticed several people walk by with Night Furies. Each person was equipped with some kind of weapon strapped to their back. Some had a bow and arrows, others had a staff or large sword.

We reached the building that was carved out of stone and Huntress waved a hand, telling me I could enter. I did with Toothless right behind me.

It appeared to be one room and everything except the bed was made from stone, well that and the fire pit. I walked around the room as I made sure that it would work.

I exited to say thanks to Huntress but didn't see her. The girl was outside and I walked up to her.

"Excuse me, but where did your chief go?"

She turned and pointed up the rocky slope. I gave her my thanks and crawled up with the help of Toothless, my hand clutched the rocky walls.

As I came to the top, I turned toward the rock house that was much fancier than mine and looked in.

A woman in a cloak and long black hair stood with her back to me. She turned and I stared at her.

A slim face with sapphire blue eyes looked at me. Small freckles adorned her face across the bridge of her nose. Thin, pale pink lips opened up in a slight gasp of surprise.

She looked down. "Hello...I was hoping you wouldn't see my face yet."

"H-huntress?"

A smile tugged on her pink lips and she let out a chuckle. "Of course. Who else did you think I was?"

I shook my head. "I don't know. But I certainly didn't expect you to look like this."

She looked over as Moon Shadow chirped. "Yes Moon Shadow. Let's go down to the town square."

We got down to my house and Huntress turned to the girl. "Sydney, take Hiccup down to the town square, I'll meet you there in a few minutes."

The girl nodded and took my arm in hers. "Come on." Then she noticed Toothless. "Is this your dragon?"

I nodded and she squealed. Rubbing his neck she said, "He's adorable!" Then she turned and led the way back to town. I glanced behind me to see Huntress running down the rocky slope, cloak and hair streaming out behind her and Moon Shadow running along with her.

* * *

>TERRA

I raced off toward Xein's house and opened his door. "Xein, it's time for the evening meal."

Xein's back was toward me and his spiked armor hung over a wooden chair. He had his feet on the table and upon me entering, he put them on the ground and turned to me. His green eyes captivated me and he stood up.

Walking over, he lightly pushed me into the door frame. A small smile tugged on his lips and he leaned forward.

Leaning down, his lips grazed mine and he kissed them. Shocked, I stiffened under him and until his kisses forced me to open my lips. I closed my eyes and kissed him.

We didn't get any farther because Moon Shadow butted her head in between us, pushing us apart. My eye flickered open and I looked down. "Xein, we need to go," I whispered.

"I know." He said. Then turned and walked over to his bed. I slipped out of the house, trying to forget what had just happened.

I led the way to the large town square where all my people sat around a large pile of branches and logs. The dragons sat near the back and as I entered, two of them shot a blast of fire at the logs. I stayed standing as Xein sat down and I waited for the others to quiet down.

Once the only noise was the sound of the fire crackling, I spoke. "My Night Riders, we have had a wonderful day of training and hunting. Now I know I wasn't here, but from what I've seen, things are going well. I'd also like to recognize our visitor from Berk, Chief Hiccup.

He will be staying for a while. Let's begin the meal shall we?"

Everyone cheered as the bowls of food where passed around for both the humans and the dragons. Smiling, I sat down and took my share. Hiccup looked at me from across the fire and gave me a nervous smile.

...

After everyone had eaten, stories where exchanged around the fire and some of the kids played games with each other. I watched them with my back leaning against Moon Shadow.

Suddenly the kids and some of the preteens crowded around me. "Huntress, sing the dragon song," one of them said.

"I really don't-"

"Please!" said another and the whole group gave me begging looks.

I sighed and leaned forward. With a small smile on my face I said, "You guys won't drop it will you?"

They shook their heads and I replied, "Alright."

Sitting up, I began singing:

Ashes to ashes,

Bones to bones.

The red embers dance in the wind,

and the orange flames burn.

Don't be frightened my dear little child,

Then I as I sang, a male voice joined in. I was shocked to see it was Hiccup:

for I will be here with you all through the night.

Close your eyes,

and remember this song.

When you wake,

the dragons will be gone.

We finished and the other were staring at the two of us. I closed my eyes for a second before turning and walking away from the fire where I could be alone...

* * *

>You must be saying: another cliff hanger! seriously!

Well yes. This is setting things up for the next chapter. I came up with that song off the top of my head so sorry it's not terrific.

This chapter was also longer with more than 1,000 words.

Please review!

~ Frostbite711

8. Family Renunion

TERRA

I walked away and Moon Shadow followed. Glancing at her, I saw her give me a questioning look.

What was that about? Why did we leave?

I shook my head. I didn't want to answer her. As I started up toward my home, I heard the thud of footsteps. I stopped.

"What," I demanded, not turning around.

There was some panting before, to my surprise, Hiccup answered, "How do you know that song?"

I whirled around to face him and glared, crossing my arms. "I've always known it. Where did you learn it?"

"My mother taught it to me."

"Valka?"

"Yes. She told me that she made it up, she was the only one who knew it. So...how do you know?"

Closing my eyes, I didn't answer.

"How. Do. You. Know." He grabbed my arm.

My eyes flew open and I swatted his hand off. Then I grabbed his armor and yanked him down so my face was inches from his. "I. DON'T. KNOW. Hiccup. I don't remember much of my past before Moon Shadow found me. I was only four."

Hiccup was silent. "I'm sorry," he whispered.

"Sorry? Sorry doesn't cut it. You weren't the reason I got lost."

"Again, I'm sorry that you got lost."

I sagged against him, and looked at the floor. My head was leaning against his chest as I sighed.

"I know, what's done is done. I just..." Then I looked up into his forest green eyes. I peered closer, they seemed so familiar. I closed my eyes for a second, and that's when it came to me.

I backed up from him and bumped into Moon Shadow, who chirped in surprise. "You..." I said.

"What?" he asked.

"I-I think you might be my brother."

He blinked. Then he looked down as if thinking it over. "You may be on to something there. I mean, you knew that song."

I nodded. "And you look just like my brother from what I could remember. Forest green eyes and brown hair."

Hiccup nodded to me. "I don't remember a sister though."

Giving him a smile I said, "You wouldn't. If you are my brother, you were a few months old."

"There's only one way to find out."

"Your mother?"

"Yep," he said.

* * *

>HICCUP

Not long after our discussion, Huntress and I went to our houses and started to work out a plan. We each packed different items and I noticed, as I exited my house, she was wearing her cloak again. And when she turned to me, I saw that she had put her mask back on. She nodded to me before slipping her bow and quiver over her back.

As I walked forward, a blur zipped past me, and I caught the snow white hair of Xein as he flew past us on a dragon. Walking over to her I asked, "What's that about?"

"Xein's going ahead of us and giving Berk a message for me. We'll make a stop at Dragon Island before we finished heading off to Berk," she said.

I nodded and walked over to Toothless. He butted me with his head as I checked his straps and climbed up. When I was settled, I caught Huntress looking at me.

"What?" I asked.

"Nothing," was her reply. Then she leaned forward and patted Moon Shadow's head. The white dragon let out a purr and shook her head, her spine pulsed green for a second before she opened her wings and took off.

"Let's go bud," I said, leaning down to speak to Toothless. He needed no further persuasion for he launched himself after Moon Shadow and followed her white body as she and her rider led us out of the cave and into the night.

Moon Shadow veered down and Huntress hopped down onto a tree branch while the white shape of the dragon dived down lower and then rolled.

After a moment, she came soaring back up and Huntress hopped effortlessly onto her back. Though now I was having a harder time spotting them. Moon Shadow must have rubbed her scales in mud.

Then we soared onward. Our dragons flapped their wings every once in a while.

At some point, I glanced at Huntress to see her leaning on the back of her dragon. She then spoke up, "Have you ever felt like you were in a different world while flying."

The question caught me off guard and I stared. Then I blinked. "Sometimes."

She turned her head to me and took off her mask. She was smiling.

All of a sudden, she sat bolt upright as Moon Shadow let out a strange hiss. Toothless also growled.

I leaned forward and asked, "What's wrong bud?"

Upon hearing a dark chuckle, I looked over at Huntress.

"What?"

"You. You're trying to figure out what he's saying when you so obviously don't speak dragon." Then her smiled faded and her face grew serious. "They smell something off, below the clouds."

"I'll take a lo-" I broke off as she held up a hand and slipped on her mask.

Then I saw her lean forward, without speaking, she and her dragon moved downward below the clouds. After a moment, Toothless followed. We flew down and I noticed that the two where crouched against the stones. Moon Shadow's dirt covered scales blended in well as we dropped down near to them.

Huntress turned her head toward me and put a finger to where her lips should be.

Wordlessly, I got down and approached the edge of the rock.

Groups of large men in armor and weapons worked beneath us. A few of them carried crates and other objects. One man caught my attention.

He looked about 6 feet tall and had a some what large build. He wore armor that looked as if it was covered with dragon skin. On his right arm he held a very large and cruel looking staff with a large blade on one end. Spikes covered the staff near each end and it was completely black.

The man himself had black hair and brown eyes. A large scar stretched across his whole face and his mouth seemed to be fixed in a permanent scowl.

I found myself staring at him.

"Hurry up men! I want those poisons ready soon," the man growled.

"Those Night Riders won't be able to beat us this time," he said as he turned his back to us.

I glanced over at Huntress to see her crouched closer to the rock, she seemed to be observing the other men.

Then the leader spoke again, "This time their Huntress will be mine."

I stared at him again. Then I felt someone tugging on me. I turned to see Huntress looking at me. She pointed to our dragons and I nodded. Then I pulled my mask over my face and hopped back onto Toothless.

Our dragons opened their wings and with a mighty flap, lifted us into the sky where the clouds were.

* * *

>TERRA

We flew fast and hard. I felt Moon Shadow's breathing as she lowered me down on the Island. I patted her side as I dismounted. She nuzzled my shoulder.

You need me to help you?

Yes _please.__

Then she opened her wings and folded them around me. I heard Hiccup and Toothless land and the sound of Hiccup's boots hitting the stones.

Before he could come over to me, I said, "Don't look."

I then pulled my cloak around me and dug into my saddle bag that I had attached to Moon Shadow. Then I pulled out a dress made from soft material. I gently pulled off my other outfit and put the dress on, buttoning up the straps and making sure the dress fit well.

Then Moon Shadow opened her wings again and I pulled my cloak back on. I walked over to Moon Shadow's neck and hopped on.

"Let's go now." Then we launched into the sky.

* * *

>XEIN
_

I flew onward and saw the town of Berk settled against the mountains. I smiled and leaned forward patted the neck of my Night Fury, Blade, who snorted in response.

As we flew closer, I heard people yelling, "Hiccup's back!"

How do I look like that boy? I thought. Then as I landed on the docs, the swarmed down.

People froze as they took in my white hair and blue eyes. "You're not Hiccup!" someone shouted.

I laughed. "No I am not."

Suddenly they gave me suspicious looks and a few tried to get near me. I ducked and when one swung his axe at me, I dodged and then grabbed the handle. Looking up at him, I gave him a smile before shoving him backwards into the others.

"Stop!" shouted a voice, it sounded female. Then a woman with blond hair in a braid and blue eyes stepped forward. She glared at me, then stopped when Blade stepped forward and growled at her.

"Who are you? And where did you get that dragon?"

"Me? Oh, I'm sorry. I guess I was a little to preoccupied with not getting my head chopped off to tell you my name. I am Xein, follower of the Dark Fury, senior member of the Night Riders. And about my dragon, I didn't steal him." Then I crossed my arms. "But I didn't come here to talk about me, I came to give you a message. I presume you are acting chief while he is gone?"

The woman nodded, "I'm Astrid."

"Rest assured, your chief and mine are on their way here. Dark Fury gave me specific instructions to ask for Valka."

* * *

>HICCUP
_

Not long after we left Dragon Island, we headed to Berk. Then I spotted the familiar rocks of my home and I smiled, bending forward and patting Toothless.

Moon Shadow dived down near me, dipping and weaving into the water, allowing the mud to come off. Frankly, I was amazed that Huntress could stay on while her dragon kept splashing into the water.

Then the flew back up towards me and followed as I led us to the stables.

We flew into the stables and I dismounted Toothless, then I made sure he was fine before glancing around. There wasn't anyone here and I turned to Huntress. "Come on."

She nodded to me and followed as I led the way out of the stables. Her dragon followed close behind, bright scales glowing in the darkness. We emerged from the stables and people turned. Then they swarmed around us.

"Chief Hiccup's back!" They shouted.

"Who's this?"

"Where did she get her dragon?"

Where have you been?"

The questions went on and when I glanced over at Huntress, she crouched closer to her dragon and seemed to be over whelmed. I didn't answer their questions and instead made my way to the great hall with Toothless, Huntress, and Moon Shadow following.

I opened the doors and walked in. I instantly spotted the blond hair of Astrid and she ran up to me. Giving me a hug, she kissed me on the lips. Huntress looked at us before turning to Xein.

Even though I couldn't see her face, I new she brightened up because she walked over to him and caressed his cheek. Then she pulled off her mask and kissed him.

A voice behind them made them stop. "I was told you wanted to speak with me."

Turning, we saw my mother and her dragon, Cloud Jumper.

Huntress nodded and looked back at me. Noting the message in her eyes, I stepped forward.

"Give a moment alone," I said to Astrid who nodded and led Xein away.

Once alone, Huntress and I stood in front of Valka.

"Valka," Huntress began. "Did you ever have a daughter?"

My mother stared shocked and looked at Huntress, confused. "How did you know?"

Huntress looked down and took off her mask and flipped off her hood. Looking back up, she gazed at my mother with her forest green eyes.

"No...It can't be. You-you disappeared. We looked everywhere for you."

Huntress stood still and looked her in the eyes. "I didn't die. Moon Shadow found me, she took care of me."

Then my mother smiled, wrapping Huntress in a big hug. Huntress stood still for several long seconds before her muscles relaxed and she wrapped her arms around Valka.

"Oh Terra, I missed you so much."

"Mom?" I asked.

Our mom focused her gaze on me as she pulled away and held Huntress out at arms length. "How did you find her Hiccup. I mean, I know she came to us, but how did you find out."

Huntress pulled away and looked down, her face turning red. "We uh, sang the Dragon song that you used to sing to us."

Valka smiled, tears glistening on her cheeks. "This calls for a celebration."

Huntress nodded. "That's why I'm wearing this." She then pulled the cloak away from her body, to reveal a white dress with criss-cross blue patterns along it.

"Smart girl."

Huntress then turned to me. "Hiccup," she said. "You may call me Terra if you want. After all, it appears we are brother and sister."

I was speechless. There was nothing I could say to that.

Then she turned back around as our mother put her arm on Terra's shoulders. "So, tell me, what have you been doing all these years?"

"Well, I was raised by Moon Shadow, so I learned to speak dragon. I'm a chief of the Night Riders, a group of outsiders or people found at sea who now protect and live amongst Night Furies."

"Really?"

Terra nodded. "Yeah, I know you guys thought they were missing, but I've been with them my whole life."

"Terra," I called. She turned to me, question in her gaze.

"Five years ago, I visited the Isle of Night, how come no Night Furies where there."

She tapped her chin as she thought. "Five years ago...let's see...We were already gone. Years before that, me and Moon Shadow had found Vikings who killed dragons getting too close. We flew back and had the whole place evacuated. Then we eventually found the home we have now."

"Wow," I said, catching up to them.

Terra nodded. "Indeed." Then we left the hall, going out into the village.

* * *

>I hope you enjoyed! I took longer to write this, and I'm still not certain about this chapter, but whatever.

And as always: please review, favorite, or follow!

~ Frostbite711

End
file.